A Robin in the South

- I saw a robin in the south
 Upon a holly tree,
 He took a berry in his mouth
 And turned to look at me.
- I fancied that he knew my face. So brightly gleamed his eyes. To find me in so strange a place Had caught him with surprise.
- "Hello," I thought I heard him say "My friend from Michigan! And how is little Janet, pray? Is Buddy yet a man?
- And is my nest beneath the caves, Or have you torn it down? and did the clin tree lose its leaves When winter came to town?
- "Ch. tell me, did that oak tree live Which withered last July? Despite the care I saw you give I feared that it would die."
- I gave him all the news and then He smiled and flew away.
